INSTRUCTIONS

1. This question paper consists of pages and a -page insert. Please check that your question paper is complete.
2. Utilise your reading time carefully.
3. Ensure that you number your questions as indicated on the question paper.
4. Begin each QUESTION on a new page. Do not copy down headings for your answers. Copy down only the question numbers, making sure they are accurate. You may answer the questions in whatever order you wish, but number your answers exactly as the questions are numbered.
5. Do not hesitate to give your own judgements. Attempt to create space in which your own voice is evident. The examiners will judge your answers on your understanding of, and insight into given texts, and will also assess the competence with which your answers are expressed.
6. Be guided by the number of marks allocated to each question. Aim at concise answers that give relevant information.
7. Answers must be written in the Answer Book supplied.
8. IT IS IN YOUR OWN INTEREST TO WRITE LEGIBLY AND TO PRESENT YOUR WORK NEATLY.

QUESTION 1 COMPREHENSION

25 MARKS

Read TEXT 1 entitled, South Africa's #MeToo gap: No accountability for high-profile men and answer the questions that follow.

- 1.1 In your own words, define what the #MeToo movement entails. (1)

A movement that seeks to campaign against violence against women and children, sexual misconduct.

- 1.2 Explain why it would be appropriate for the writer to refer to the movement as sending 'shockwaves' across the US. In your answer, consider the connotations of the word 'shockwaves'. (2)

Earthquake Metaphor – to explain the impact of the abuse and the number of people involved, the status of the people involved (high profile) and how far-reaching it is. Shocked reaction to the events. The repercussions of the movement are felt across the country.

- 1.3 Explain the meaning of the idiomatic expression, 'call men in power out' as it has been used in paragraph 3. (2)

To name and shame men of status in society, to make them accountable for their actions.

- 1.4 Identify and correct the grammar error in the sentence, 'South Africa, however, does not seem to know how to call men in power out.' (2)

Dangling/misplaced preposition – to know how to call out men in power.

- 1.5 How reliable is the writer's argument in paragraph 4? Your answer should consider diction and tone. (3)

His argument is reliable as he quotes stats provided by SA Medical Research Council to support his answer. "21% over the age of 18 reported that they'd experienced violence at the hands of a partner." Tone is formal, accusatory, harsh "unreported", "femicide rate" "5 times higher" "poorest households". So emotive language might lead to an opinionated argument which may lower the reliability as the writer wishes to persuade the reader of his point of view. Depth and complexity of answer is essential here. Layering of ideas and proof.

- 1.6 Explain the effectiveness of the rhetorical question in paragraph 6? (2)

Raise awareness for violence and take action against abuse. Do something about the violence.

- 1.7 'We can bang on about #16DaysofActivism all we like but if we can't address the trashy behaviour of our leaders then these campaigns are just window dressing.' (Paragraph 7)

- 1.7.1 Identify the register used in the sentence above. How does the use of register affect the message of the text? (3)

Informal, colloquial register. Draws the reader into the text, makes them feel part of the discussion. It highlights the dirty, repulsive nature of the sexual acts. Writer is being harsh and blunt.

- 1.7.2 Provide a dictionary definition for #16DaysofActivism. Your entry needs to include a part of speech, definition and etymology (word origin). (3)

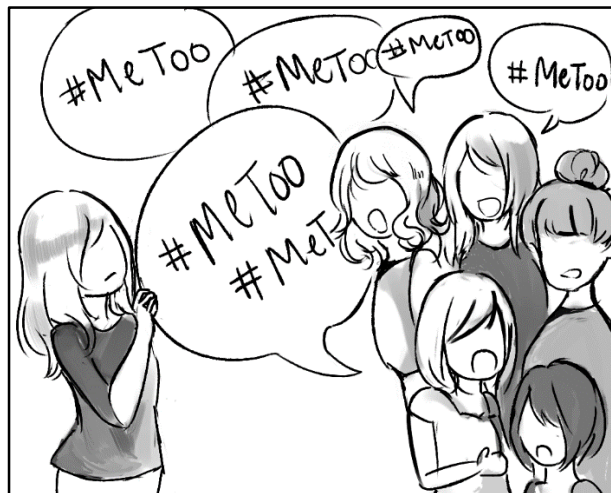

#16DaysofActivism n. 16 days, or a period of time in which people speak out against abuse and actively try to combat it. From: social campaigns #from social media handle. Joining of words to create a handle or name of campaign.

- 1.8 Evaluate how successful the hashtags and awareness campaigns could be in addressing discrimination in South Africa. (3)

Hashtags are generally not successful/ have limited success as they raise awareness but don't inspire action. "Window-dressing" – they present ideas and dress it up but don't offer opportunities to make a difference. Hashtags trend but are forgotten often. (Some who seek revenge against an alleged attack, could attach their names to the campaign to validate their experiences.)

- 1.9 Considering the title of the article and the cartoon below, how does the writer position herself in relation to her subject matter? Refer to visual and verbal details in your answer. (4)

The cartoon reveals a number of women who have been abused "me too". They are faceless, have no facial features and are therefore not considered to be important. They don't want to be identified as victims. The writer raises awareness for the shocking nature of SA abuse and that this campaign needs to be broadened as this campaign has not gone far enough. Even at the highest levels of government, abuse is not being adequately addressed and insufficient convictions have been made. "No accountability" "me too gap" "high-profile men" – emotive words in the title accuse SA of not dealing adequately with this issue.

QUESTION 2

SUMMARY

10 MARKS

Refer to TEXT 2, Global Migration and answer the following question:

Summarise, in not more than 90 words, how the international community could address the challenges related to global migration.

- Your response must be in the form of one coherent paragraph.
- You must use full sentences.
- Your language use must be accurate and in an appropriate register.
- Provide an appropriate title which is included in your word count.
- Provide an accurate word count at the end of the summary.
- Use your own words. 'Cutting and pasting' of information is not acceptable.

QUESTION 3 SEEN POETRY

10 MARKS

Read the poem below and answer the questions which follow:

“i thank You God for most this amazing”

by e.e. cummings

i thank You God for most this amazing 1

day: for the leaping greenly spirits of trees and a blue true dream of sky; and for everything which is natural which is infinite which is yes

(i who have died am alive again today, 5 and this is the sun’s birthday; this is the birth day of life and of love and wings: and of the gay great happening illimitably earth)

how should tasting touching hearing seeing breathing any—lifted from the no 10 of all nothing—human merely being doubt unimaginaire You?

(now the ears of my ears awake and now the eyes of my eyes are opened)

- 3.1 How does the use of punctuation in line 1 enhance the poet’s purpose in this poem? (2)

The small letter use of i and capital letters for You and God indicate the poet wants to praise God and indicate the insignificance of humanity.

- 3.2 Comment on the purpose of the parenthesis in stanzas 2 and 4. (2)

The poet’s personal experience and his own thoughts. He feels alive and aware of the abundance of God’s beauty.

- 3.3 Discuss the effectiveness of cummings’ use of inverted word order in the poem. (2)

To stress a particular word in the sentence “I thank you for most this amazing”, to stress the ‘most’. It forces the reader to pause and contemplate the lines more carefully. Accept other examples. One example with effect.

- 3.4 What do you think the poet means by the expression lifted from the no / of all nothing (lines 10 and 11)? (1)

To be lifted from ignorance into a state of awareness of creation.

- 3.5 Select the image which best describes the overall tone of the poem. Justify your choice by making close reference to the poem and the image. (3)
Choose one image and connect to a tone of awe, inspiring, amazement, reverence. Must refer to poem and visual details in image.

QUESTION 4 UNSEEN POETRY

10 MARKS

Refer to the poems below and answer the questions that follow.

NIGHTSONG: CITY – Dennis Brutus

Sleep well, my love, sleep well:
the harbour lights glaze over restless docks,
police cars cockroach through the tunnel streets;

from the shanties' creaking iron-sheets violence like a bug-infested rag is tossed and fear is immanent as sound in the wind-swung bell;

the long day's anger pants from sand and rocks;
but for this breathing night at least,
my land, my love, sleep well.

5

- 4.1. Who is the speaker addressing in the poem? Substantiate your answer. (2)
Speaking to the city/land/country. Wanting his city/country to sleep in peace.
- 4.2 Account for the speaker's use of the word, cockroach (line 3), to describe the police cars. (2)
They are scurrying, pests, creeping out of hiding places, ominous, dirty feeling about them, invasive.
- 4.3 Identify and discuss the effectiveness of the figure of speech in line 5. (2)
Simile – violence compared to a rag that is infested with bugs and tosses aside. Violence is pervasive and you toss it aside so as not to be affected by it.

The Second Coming

WILLIAM BUTLER YEATS

Turning and turning in the widening gyre
The falcon cannot hear the falconer;
Things fall apart; the centre cannot hold;
Mere anarchy is loosed upon the world, 5
The blood-dimmed tide is loosed, and everywhere
The ceremony of innocence is drowned;
The best lack all conviction, while the worst
Are full of passionate intensity.

Surely some revelation is at hand; 10
Surely the Second Coming is at hand.
The Second Coming! Hardly are those words out
When a vast image out of Spiritus Mundi
Troubles my sight: somewhere in sands of the desert
A shape with lion body and the head of a man, 15
A gaze blank and pitiless as the sun,
Is moving its slow thighs, while all about it
Reel shadows of the indignant desert birds.
The darkness drops again; but now I know
That twenty centuries of stony sleep 20
Were vexed to nightmare by a rocking cradle,
And what rough beast, its hour come round at last,
Slouches towards Bethlehem to be born?

- 4.4. Consider The Second Coming by Yeats and Nightsong: City by Brutus and discuss how the structure of both poems enhances the mood. Justify your response with reference to both poems. (4)

Structure of Second Coming: no rhyming, free verse reflects the restlessness of society, anarchy. Enjambment creates fluidity or argument 6,7 and 8,9. +Quote

Structure of Nightsong: 3 stanza of equal length, no rhyming to indicate the lack of structure in society emphasizing the violence of society. +Quote

Mood: sombre, restless (Nightsong), hopeless, faithless and desperate (Second Coming) + Quotes

QUESTION 5 VISUAL LITERACY

25 MARKS

Refer to TEXT 3, the advertisement for the TOPSY FOUNDATION and answer the questions that follow.

- 5.1 What is the advertiser's intention in stating that 'AIDS is creating child parents at an alarming rate'? (2)
Shocks the reader; realisation of the horror of the AIDS epidemic. Awareness of the destruction of the traditional family unit. Shocking understanding of young children becoming adults too soon and needing to parent.
- 5.2 Discuss the effectiveness of the image used to support the message of the advertiser. (3)
Childish handwriting, the crayon, the toy car, spelling mistakes to indicate that a child has written the note. The note supports the fact that so many children are acting as parents.

Refer to TEXT 4 and answer the questions below.

- 5.3 Study on the logo at the bottom of the advertisement.
- 5.3.1 Provide a definition for the word stigma as used in the logo. (2)
A negative generalisation/idea/perception/reputation about an issue or a person.
- 5.3.2 How does the design of the logo enhance the advertiser's message? (2)
The plus/minus on the T to suggest the extent to which people are judged because of being HIV positive. Cross could symbolise death, mark on a grave.
- 5.4 What does it mean to be HIV NEUTRAL? (2)
Not to make a judgement of people who are HIV positive or who suffer from AIDS.
- 5.5 How does the use of the diction succeed in calling the reader to take action? (3)
Emotive words "passionate" "smart" "honest" "kind" "cautious" – these words make people feel good about making a difference. These words inspire people not to be judgemental and to befriend people with AIDS and be more empathetic to their plight.
- 5.6 Discuss how the font and font size play an integral part in the effectiveness of the advertisement. (2)
Larger font and bolder to emphasize the essence of the message – to be caring and compassionate. The font looks like a command, the reader feels that he/she is compelled to be more compassionate.

Refer to both TEXTS 3 and 4 to answer the following questions.

- 5.7 Identify and discuss the bias evident in both TEXT 3 and TEXT 4. Focus on verbal and visual clues. (5)
Text 3 assumes that the child-parent is a black child which suggests that mostly black people are affected by AIDS in SA. The child lacks education which is also associated with AIDS. The letter is written by "Nomsa" to "Principal Dhlamini" enforcing the black stereotype that many black children cannot attend school any longer as they are obliged to stay home and look after smaller siblings.

Text 4 – white hands reach out to help those in need. This suggest that all generosity and assistance is metered out by white benevolent, educated, elite people. The language used is grammatically correct and sophisticated “stigma free”.

- 5.8 Suggest two ways in which an advertiser could overcome bias in an advertisement which focuses on social issues. (3)

Reflect all race groups, not make judgements based on level of education, use of language that is inclusive and not biased eg “HIV affects us all”. The use of inclusive pronouns would overcome bias and unite all. Circle of hands, not just 2 hands. Names should be more generic.

QUESTION 6 TEXTUAL EDITING

10 MARKS

- 5.1 Identify and correct the grammar error in line 1. (2)

Split infinitive – “to always spark” should be corrected as “to spark always”.

- 5.2 Why would the writer choose to place ‘Golden Boot’ (paragraph 2) in capital letters? (2)

The status he has achieved has earned him the respect of being known as having a Golden Boot.

- 5.3 Explain the connotations of the title ‘Black Panther’ being given to Eusebio. (2)

He is a hero, a king, someone who is fit and strong and stealthy like a panther.

- 5.4 Explain the effectiveness of the use of informal language to describe George Best in paragraph 3. (2)

The informal language is used to criticize him and being fast and loose. It makes him sound like a person who lacks moral values.

- 5.5 By analysing the sentence structure of the last sentence, assess the effectiveness of the writer’s choice to convey his message. (2)

Compound sentence starting with a misrelated participle. Although this player didn’t showcase his talents globally, the titles he has won are listed therefore encouraging the reader to admire him.

TEXT 1

South Africa's #MeToo gap: No accountability for high-profile men

Shaazia Ebrahim 05 Dec 2017

1. The #MeToo movement began on our timelines - then became tangible as scores of high-profile American men are being fired for their trash behaviour. South Africa has its own list of high-profile men who are perpetrators of sexual misconduct. But they continue to escape their sexist behaviour unscathed.
2. The hashtag #MeToo continues to send shockwaves across the USA as more and more people are coming forward with their stories of sexual abuse. It started in Hollywood, when film producer Harvey Weinstein was accused by a number of actresses of rape and sexual misconduct; actor Kevin Spacey was also accused of sexually assaulting male actors.
3. Considerable action has been taken against many of the accused. Weinstein was fired from his own company and expelled from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Spacey was axed by Netflix, and his hit TV show House of Cards was cancelled. South Africa, however, does not seem to know how to call men in power out. This is necessary, especially considering our sexual violence statistics.
4. Statistics South Africa (StatsSA), along with the South African Medical Research Council released a study earlier this year which found that 21% of women over the age of 18 reported that they'd experienced violence at the hands of a partner. That's one in five women. Bear in mind that many cases go unreported. South Africa's femicide rate is five times higher than the global average, and at least half of these women die at the hands of intimate partners. Worse, women in the poorest households are more likely to experience physical violence compared to the top earning homes.
5. Still, only between 8-9% of sexual offences reported to police in South Africa actually result in a conviction according to deputy justice minister John Jeffery.
6. With statistics as shocking as these, surely we need to take sexual violence a little more seriously?
7. These cases are underreported and women don't think people will believe them. The #MeToo movement is a good opportunity to prioritise the fight against gender-based violence. If we let men in high places get away with sexual violence, we reproduce a system of rape culture. We can bang on about #16DaysOfActivism all we like but if we can't address the trashy behaviour of our leaders then these campaigns are just window dressing.

8. When former MP and singer Jennifer Ferguson came out and accused ANC politician and soccer boss Danny Jordaan of rape, there was a spark of a #MeToo movement. But that quickly fizzled out. Ferguson said Jordaan raped her in a hotel in Port Elizabeth 24 years ago. The ruling party was silent on this accusation, so too was its women's league.

Twitter Ads information and privacy

9. But Parliament is a sexist circus. ANC members made cat noises as the Congress of the People (COPE) MP Deidre Carter spoke earlier this year, a “tradition” whose origins are unclear but has continued for a number of years. Former DA leader Lindiwe Mazibuko who served as parliamentary leader was numerously attacked about her weight, style and hair. She was called Helen Zille’s “tea girl” by Julius Malema (EFF leader) and was featured in a list by The Guardian of top 10 sexist moments in politics internationally.
10. Malema called Minister of Human Settlements Lindiwe Sisulu a “Barbie doll” in Parliament in 2014. That year, Malema also insulted Small Business Minister Lindiwe Zulu as “little street walker” and referred to her as a “street meid”.
11. We need more hashtags and awareness, but more importantly we need action and accountability. If we continue to allow sexism on the highest platforms in South Africa, we shouldn’t be shocked about our gender-based violence statistics. In fact, why bother with initiatives like 16 Days of Activism anyway?

GLOBAL MIGRATION

The numbers are staggering: globally, nearly a quarter of a billion people live in a country other than their place of birth, an increase of 41% from 2000 to 2015. That number includes more than 21 million refugees, often vulnerable. Given the geopolitical turmoil, this migration will only increase. What should the global community be doing about it?

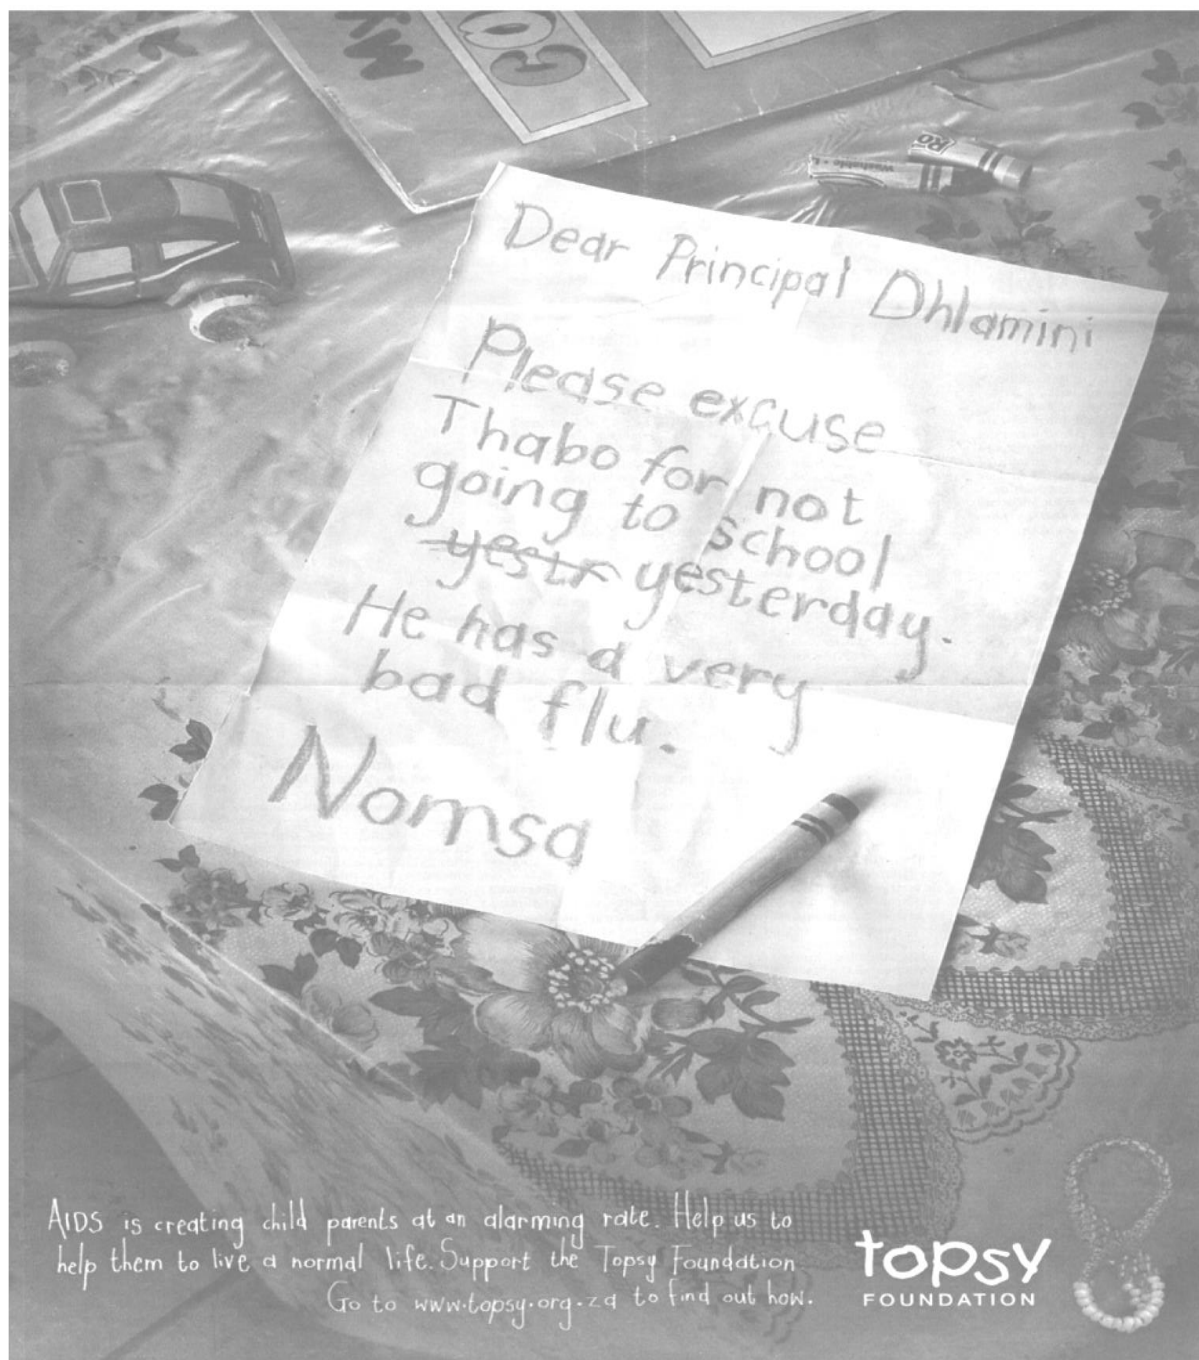

It is important that we closely examine the causes of migration – especially the flow of refugees. While the primary driver of global migration is the search for a better economic situation, concerns over physical security are often the catalysts for undertaking long, expensive and dangerous journeys. We see women, children and families fleeing from violent regions in the world. In addition to focusing on the root causes in problematic countries, we need an international approach to dealing with challenges related to migration. Controlling the flow of migrants, caring for them in humane ways and fairly judging whether they qualify as refugees require a team effort.

We must apply both resources and technology to these challenges in creative and innovative ways. This means increasing the number and training of civilians who work in border control.

Both non-governmental organisations and the private sector have key roles to play. The international committee of the Red Cross, the United Nations organisations focused on migration and refugees, and big private charities should convene a summit alongside governments to address solutions and ideas for coping with the flow of migrants. Furthermore, there is a real security dimension to deal with. We should use biometrics, monitoring of social networks and our militaries to help reduce security risks to a minimum.

Most importantly, we need to hold to our values. In this season of hyperbolic elections in most countries in the world, it is all too easy to lose sight of the most critical reasons for dealing with migration humanely. On the Statue of Liberty, in the United States of America, carved in granite, it says, 'Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses, yearning to breathe free.' We can best live up to that promise with an intelligent plan centred on international co-operation. Idealism needs a good plan, and migration today is a powerful global crisis drifting without one. The Greatest Soccer players of all time (Jon O'Brien, 2017)

It's the question guaranteed to always spark contentious debate amongst soccer fans. Who is the greatest player of all time? Given the ever-changing nature of the game, it's perhaps an unanswerable one. How do you compare someone from the era of the pigskin ball, half-time oranges and legal backpass with the highly-trained, physically advanced multi-millionaires of today? Nevertheless, we've attempted to tackle it anyway, basing the results on a highly scientific combination of statistics, talent and overall impact on the sport. Here's our verdict.

One of the first African-born players to make an impression on the international game, Eusebio steered Portugal to a third-place finish at the 1966 World Cup with a Golden Boot – winning nine goals. At club level, he scored 638 times in 614 appearances for Benfica, lifting eleven league titles, a European Cup and a Ballon d'Or during a prolific 15-year run. The 'Black Panther' also possessed a humility every bit as extraordinary as his athletic prowess, technical skill and phenomenal range of finishing. A firm believer in fair play, he once applauded Alex Stepney just seconds after the Manchester United keeper had denied him a late winner in the 1968 European Cup final.

Who knows what else George Best could have achieved had he not squandered his talent with his tabloid-baiting love of 'booze, birds and fast cars?' But despite quitting Manchester United, and essentially his top-flight career, at the age of just 27, the hard-partying winger still remains an iconic figure. Quite simply he was one of the most naturally gifted players the game has ever seen. Blessed with a magical dribbling ability, blistering pace and a sense of balance, Best inspired awe every time he stepped onto the field. Hailing from the humble soccer nation of Northern Ireland, he never got the chance to showcase his talents on the world stage, but he did win two league titles and a European Cup as a pivotal member of Sir Matt Busby's rebuilt United side.
